ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

2016

1. Overview

Administrative Law is a final year course for the LLB degree and offered over the whole year as a single course. It aims to enable students to know the important and sophisticated body of law governing the exercise and control of public power in South Africa. Administrative law deals with organs of state and the question of why it is important to distinguish administrative action from other actions of organs of state. How do the legislative, the executive and the judicial actions of the state differs from organs of state and what are the reason for this differentiation and the implication for the effective function of the state administration? What type of administrative actions is there and what are the requirements and implications? What are the requirements in terms of the Constitution, PAJA and the common law for administrative justice?

The Constitution, PAJA and the common law deals with the sources of administrative law, the meaning of administrative justice and administrative action, the requirements (lawfulness, procedural fairness and reasonableness) and appropriate remedies as equally important and interrelated concepts in Administrative Law. The distinction between exercises of power by the state and other similar bodies exercising public power and exercises of legislative and judicial power, on the one hand, and exercises of public and private power on the other will be thoroughly examined. The course will also focus on examining various legal and other mechanisms to control the exercise of public power. A reasonable knowledge of Constitutional law and a thorough understanding of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (Constitution) is most certainly an advantage for an understanding of Administrative Law. This is because the discussions in this course will be informed by the values and principles of the Constitution.

Students in Administrative law should be able to formulate and identify the most appropriate and legally correct administrative action in a given situation. In order to do that, students should be able to identify an administrative action as well as the specific rules of administrative law applicable in the given set of facts. These are general as well as particular rules of administrative law (both statutory as well as common law rules). It includes being able to formulate the most appropriate action in the circumstances and to be able to identify deficiencies in the action, process and procedures.

The main themes of the course will be divided into the following study units:

- | | |
|----------------|--|
| TOPIC 1 | INTRODUCTION – FOUNDING PRINCIPLES OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW |
| TOPIC 2 | WHAT IS ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION? |
| TOPIC 3 | DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE ADMINISTRATOR |
| TOPIC 4 | THE CONTROL OF ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION |
| TOPIC 5 | PROCEDURES AND REMEDIES |

2. ASSUMPTIONS OF PRIOR LEARNING

It is assumed that students:

- Understand key important provisions of the 1996 Constitution and a clear understanding of the Constitutional Law;
- Can read, analyse and extract the relevant information from the case law and other sources;
- Have ability to communicate effectively in the medium of instruction.

3. OUTCOMES

3.1 Specific Outcomes

At the end of the course and after studying the prescribed materials the students should be able to do the following:

- To critically explain different concepts and principles relating to administrative law and administrative justice in South Africa.
- To define administrative law and its purpose.
- To identify the sources of administrative law and to explain the development of administrative law in South Africa and other selected jurisdictions.
- To critically explain the meaning and content of the constitutional right to just administrative action.
- To critically explain the meaning and content of the right to just administrative action in terms of PAJA;
- Define judicial review and its purpose explain what judicial control over administrative action entails;
- Understand and apply the requirement of lawfulness to a set of facts.
- Understand and apply the requirement of reasonableness to a set of facts.
- Understand and apply the general principles of procedural fairness to a set of facts.
- Explain and understand the right to be given reasons for administrative action.
- Identify the appropriate procedure and remedies available to persons aggrieved by an administrative action.
- To apply the rules and regulations on administrative law to a given hypothetical situation and evaluate the adequacy of the grounds for judicial review and suggest law reforms where necessary.

3.2. Critical Outcomes

Apart from the knowledge and skills which relate specifically to Administrative law, the following are the skills that are central to the study and practice of the law which this course intends to enhance, namely:-

- Ability to collect, understand and analyse information from various sources of information (cases, legislation and journal articles).
- To communicate effectively through class debates and presentations.
- The ability to explain in writing, the principles of law in legal and social contexts.
- To use technology for legal research (for example, Jutastat, typed assignments, internet searches and many more).

4. TEACHING METHOD

From the very beginning it must be mentioned that the course will be critical and forward-looking. However, it will naturally involve a detailed discussion of the current law through contact hours. There will be two contact hours in a week. The lecturing method used will include formal lecturing, as well as class discussions based on problems and scenarios that students must prepare. The problem questions will be handed out to students and indicated on the lecture timetable. Students therefore remain required to prepare themselves in advance for participation in the discussion by doing appropriate research and reading. Student's preparation should be such that (s)he is equipped, if so asked, to lead the discussion of the topic. This approach will ensure that students learn to think critically and not merely absorb information.

6. ASSESSMENT

Administrative Law is a single course taught over a year. The class component of this course amounts to 50% of the final mark. One 3-hour paper will be written at the end of the year in November, which will account for the remaining 50% of the course mark. Students are assessed for the class work component (50% of the final mark) on the basis of different tasks. Tasks will be formative and summative in nature. The class work mark will consist of the following summative assessment components:

• One long class test (written in June/July)	Out of /40
• 1 assignment (first semester) • 1 test (second semester)	Each out of /20
• Discussion/problem question (one per semester for summative assessment purposes)	Each out of /10
TOTAL	100 (converted to a class mark out of 50)

Tests

A longer closed book (semester) test will be written in June or July. The test will be written before or during the June/July examination. The test will count 40% towards the class component mark. A second (shorter) test will be written at the end of semester two. This test will count 20% towards the class component mark.

Assignment

There is one assignment for this course during the first semester and the assignment will count 10% towards the class component mark. The topic will be discussed and handed out in class in the beginning of the semester.

Discussion and problem questions

Problem questions will be included in the course notes or handed out to students and will be based on problems and scenarios that students must prepare, flowing from the main themes addressed in the course. The problem questions must be prepared in advance and written solutions must be handed in during the class discussion. For every class discussion, the class will be divided into 2 separate groups. Times and dates of the class discussions will be indicated on the lecture timetable. Every problem question will be discussed in class and feedback will be given. Students need to prepare one problem question per semester. It will be formally assessed by the lecturer for marks and each problem question will count 10% towards the class component mark.
